The signing of the armistice left the American Bag company with 20,000 specially lettered bags, which were of no value to them as flour sacks. But when our attention was called to a page in the Ladies' Home Journal for November, 1918, showing the many useful articles that could be made from flour sacks we made an offer which brought the sacks to Bry's.

True we never sold flour sacks before—nor did any other store here to our knowledge—but we are sure the women of Memphis will appreciate the savings offered—and if the lot lasts the day we will be greatly surprised.

The bags are 26x26 when opened up, making an average of 82-3 yards to the dozen. And we are sure the price of 79c the dozen will show you the wisdom of buying this cotton material so cheaply.

Come join in the saving—buy as many dozen as you want—BUT come as early as you can so as to be sure of yours!
